Movements of "J. B. Brice,"
Who Turned Out to Be J.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—"James B. Brice, Chicago," the name James B. McNamara used to disguise his intention to cause explosions on the Pacific coast and particularly in Los Angeles, formed an important point in the testimony at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today.

As tending to sustain its contention that the explosions were part of a conspiracy for the illegal interstate shipment of dynamite, involving the forty-men now on trial, the government insisted it would go thoroughly into the explosion in the west, possibly throwing light on the mysterious disappearance of F. A. Schmitt and David Caplan, accused accomplices of McNamara. Caplan and Schmitt were in Los Angeles on a charge of murder, but they never were discovered. Government agents have received information that Caplan was killed.

Traced by Registers.

Witnesses reading from hotel registers testified concerning the movements of McNamara, Schmitt, Caplan and a Twentieth of San Francisco. From the time he arrived in San Francisco, August 19, 1910, until he left Los Angeles a few hours before the Los Angeles Times explosion, McNamara's whereabouts, with the exception of a few nights, were accounted for by the name "Brice" written on the register. It was this alias which John McNamara said his brother had used so often, as after the explosion "the authorities had a pretty good description of Brice."

Talked With Expert.

George A. Dixon, assistant manager of the San Francisco hotel, produced records of "Brice's" arrival there August 19, the day before an explosion in Oakland. August 30, he was traced to Seattle, where he sought from J. Wagner, teacher in a technical school, information on how to create an explosion without the use of a fulminating compound. Eugene A. Clancy, another laborer in San Francisco, was in Seattle at that time, the government asserted. The next day an office building under construction in Seattle was blown up.

Reading from a hotel register, Mr. Dixon told of "Brice's" reappearance in San Francisco, September 14, after he had lived for ten days in a boarding house. Soon after, Mr. Dixon testified, "Brice" appeared with "Perry," alias Schmitt. They occupied the same room.

Records Produced.

Records of telephone calls from McNamara's room also were produced. Three calls, according to the government attorneys, concerned the preparations for procuring the explosive that was taken to Los Angeles.

Caplan then appeared on the scene of the house in San Francisco at about nine o'clock, where later a quantity of nitroglycerine was found, was traced.

Walter L. Smith, in a hotel at Los Angeles, identified the signature of "Brice" as that of a guest who was in Los Angeles before "Brice" moved the last time.

Walter A. Dieckman, clerk in another hotel at Los Angeles, said he had a conversation with "Brice," who registered there September 29. That was the second day before the Los Angeles explosion.

Started for Salt Lake.

"The next night," testified Dieckman, "I talked to Brice. I noticed he was registered from Chicago, and I told him how things were out there. He told me he was going to San Francisco that night and wanted to know whether he would have to pay for another night because he was going to remain until 7 o'clock. He checked out at 7 o'clock."

At 1 o'clock the next morning the explosion occurred. According to telephone records produced by the government, McNamara was 200 miles away, en route to Salt Lake City, where, it is charged, he was kept in hiding by J. Munsey, a former business agent of the ironworkers' union, who testified he was a member of the "dynamiteing club."

AMUSEMENTS

SALT LAKE THEATRE—"The Goddess of Liberty" opening tonight. Curtain at 8:15 p. m. Matinee this afternoon.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Advanced vaudeville. Performances every afternoon and evening.

EMPERESS THEATRE—Sullivan-Connolly vaudeville. Matinee daily at 2:30. Two evening performances, 7:30 and 9:15.

JOSEPH E. HOWARD, the composer of so many catching little musical extravaganzas, appeared himself last night at the Salt Lake theatre in one of his most successful compositions, "The Goddess of Liberty." Mr. Howard is almost as much of a success as an actor as he is as a composer. He has a beautiful tenor voice that lent itself well to the fetching music of the songs incidental to the little extravaganza.

There is little or no plot to start with in "The Goddess of Liberty," and fortunately it never thickens. Indeed, the thread of a story running through the musical fantasy is so slender that at times it is lost entirely. Nevertheless the piece is a clever and entertaining conceit.

The burlesque by Mr. Howard and Miss McCune is particularly good. The extravaganza is a satire on international marriages. A British lord would marry an athletic American heiress. Various complications involve him desperately in love with the cousin of the heiress on the eve of the wedding day. He extricates himself without much difficulty and wins the maid he loves.

This plot, however, has little to do with the evening's entertainment and serves largely as an excuse for the introduction of the clever song hits of the piece. The playlet gives little opportunity for anyone save Mr. Howard and Miss McCune. Miss McCune is a clever and winsome actress and has one of the sweetest voices in musical comedy.

Most of the others in the piece were acceptable in the minor roles. Mabel Cassidy as the match-making mother of the heiress was considerably above the average both in avowal and histrionic ability. Her interpretation of a difficult role was well fitted and her singing a revelation.

"If All Moons Were Honeyoons," "Something, 'Here's to the Last Day'" and "Those Wonderful Eyes" were the song hits of the piece. The music was of the fetching Howard sort that is whistled by everyone almost as soon as heard.

The storm scene in the first act of the piece is worthy of particular mention. The forest at night, the campfire, the night birds calling the thunder and lightning and the rain proved most realistic in this scene.

"The Goddess of Liberty" will be the attraction at the theatre this afternoon and tonight.

The following theater notices are mailed "advertisements in order to comply with a strict interpretation of the federal newspaper law. They are not paid for."

How many of Salt Lake theatergoers have seen a real Chinese on the stage—not an impersonation, but a real live one, born in Hong Kong, China? This week at the Empress theatre Lee Tung Foo, the only Chinese in vaudeville, is masquerading in kilt and other costumes, impersonating the French, Irish, English, Scotch and German. This Chinese has a pretty baritone voice in which he renders songs of different nationalities and gives a good impersonation of the original. Nearly all over the Sullivan and Connolly circuit Lee Tung Foo has been the headline act, but at the Empress this week the great mysterious performance given by Onip, styled the man of mysteries, holds the distinction.

"The Rose of Panama," one of the latest Viennese operettas to attain success in America, will be presented under the management of John Cort at the Salt Lake theatre Monday and Tuesday nights. Mr. Cort is said to have organized a company of really excellent singers and comedians for the present tour of the opera, many of whom appeared during the engagement of the opera at Daly's theatre, New York. Chapin, the little French prima donna, who has won so much favorable comment in this country, heads the cast.

The Orpheum management announces that the first engagement of pictures in the prevailing world series baseball games will be featured this evening and from now on four pictures of each game will be shown at the Orpheum. The entire series is completed. Four pictures will be shown tonight, eight Sunday, twelve Monday, etc. These pictures are the best taken and were shipped to Salt Lake three hours after they were taken, making the first bona fide pictures to arrive. Tomorrow afternoon the bill will be presented with two headliners in the persons of Elsa Reizner, the celebrated cellist, and Grace Cameron, comedienne.

The Melody Saturday features are: "Calamity Ann's Word," a story of two little orphan children, survivors of an immigrant train, which is at once interesting and most dramatically thrilling. "Going Out for a Shave" and "The Tramp's Revenge" afford lovers of good, wholesome comedy a pair of laugh-giving features such as have not been shown at this theatre in many days. The regular daily programme, added to this, completes Melody's bill of excellence.

Mrs. I. C. Haster, Grand Island, Neb., has something she wishes to say about Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. "My three children had a very severe attack of whooping cough and suffered greatly. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and it did them more good than anything I gave them. I am glad to recommend it." Schramm-Johnson, Drugs.
